AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES

(First Defense)

Plaintiff's claims are barred under the doctrine of laches.

(Second Defense)

Plaintiff's claims are barred under the doctrine of collateral estoppel.

(Third Defense)

Plaintiff's claims are barred because of Plaintiff's abandonment of its alleged mark.

COUNTERCLAIM

THE PARTIES

1. Defendant and Counter-claimant Effie Horning is an individual residing in the County of San Diego.

2. Horning is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that Plaintiff and Counter-defendant Miss World Limited ("Miss World") is a foreign corporation organized under the laws of the United Kingdom.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

3. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this counterclaim under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1338(a) and 1367(a). This Court has personal jurisdiction over Miss World because Ms. World has availed itself of the rights and privileges of this forum by suing Horning in this District.

4. Venue is proper in this Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(c) and (d).

COMMON ALLEGATIONS

5. Horning has been conducting the Ms. World pageant since 1998. The Ms. World pageant is different from more traditional “beauty” pageants in that it places a greater emphasis on the contestants’ personalities, intelligence, and accomplishments.

6. In February 2005, Horning filed trademark application nos. 78/564,133 and 77/075,449 with the United State Patent and Trademark Office, seeking registration of the mark “Ms. World” for use in the “Entertainment in the nature of beauty pageants, beauty pageant awards shows, spokesmodel talent competitions, and fashion shows” and “Charitable Fund Raising Services” classes.

7. The pageant world is a crowded one. Unaffiliated with Horning’s Ms. World pageant and Miss World’s pageant, there are pageants for Mrs. World, Miss Latina USA World, Ms. Fitness World, Miss Asian World Beauty Pageant, Miss Islands of the World, Miss Cyberworld, and Miss Nude World—all with marks registered by the USPTO. These listed pageants are only the ones containing the word “world” in the titles that also have registered marks. This list is not exhaustive of pageants that use the word “world” in their titles.

8. In light of the crowded nature of the field, the Ninth Circuit in Miss World (UK) Limited v. Mrs. America Pageants, Inc., 856 F.2d 1445, 1449 (9th Cir. 1988) held that Miss World was “merely one of a crowd of marks. In such a crowd, customers will not likely be confused between any two of the crowd and may have learned to carefully pick out one from the other.”

9. The Ninth Circuit’s reasoning is sound. Those persons who take part in the pageant field—primarily participants and sponsors—know well the differences between the various pageants, including the very real differences between Miss World and Ms. World. Thus, there is no likelihood of confusion when it comes to these two marks.

10. Nevertheless, Miss World opposed Horning’s trademark registrations, and after Horning filed a motion for summary judgment in the TTAB, they requested and were granted a stay of the TTAB proceedings.

CAUSE OF ACTION

(Declaratory Relief)

11. Horning incorporates by reference the allegations in paragraphs 1-10 as if fully set forth herein.

12. There exists a real and substantial dispute between the parties as to Horning's right to use the Ms. World mark. Horning therefore asks for a declaration from this Court to the effect that: (1) there is no likelihood of confusion between the Miss World and Ms. World marks, and (2) Horning is entitled to registration of the Ms. World mark with the USPTO.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

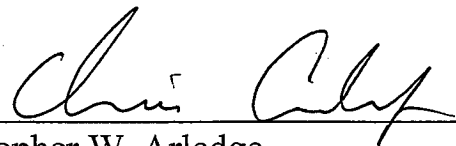

Wherefore Horning prays for relief as follows:

1. That this Court issue a declaration to the effect that: (1) there is no likelihood of confusion between the Miss World and Ms. World marks, and (2) Horning is entitled to registration of the Ms. World mark with the USPTO;
2. That Horning be awarded her costs; and
3. That Horning be awarded all such other relief that the Court finds appropriate.
